121. The Prophetess: an Outline.
122. Lorenzo and Jessica. A Study.
124. Belshazzar's Feast. (In the Hall.)

"It is known that Mr. Allston began the picture in London before his return to his native country, and had very nearly finished it here fifteen or twenty years ago. Being obliged to quit the room in which he worked upon it, and unable immediately to find another large enough for the purpose, the picture was rolled up and laid aside. Various circumstances prevented his resuming the work until within a few years before his death. At one period it was considered by himself as requiring not many weeks' labor to complete it. In that state it was seen by some friends, to whom it appeared a finished picture. For some reason, however, the artist thought that the effect of the composition would be improved by a change in the perspective, and, in connection with this, an enlargement of the figures in the foreground. With this view, the king, the queen, and the soothsayers were to be repainted. He undertook the labor, and the entire figure of the king, except the left foot, and the heads of the soothsayers, were erased. What progress he had made in restoring these will be readily seen, as the picture is in every respect as he left it; except that the original figure of the king, now pumiced down so as to leave little more than the first color, was found covered with a uniform coat of dead color, which completely obliterated even the outline and of the new figure he had repainted, but not finished, only the right hand."

. . . . . .

"Upon the head of the soothsayer, who faces the spectator, are the last touches ever made by the pencil of the artist, and but a few hours before his death." — 1845.

124 A and B. Studies for the above (in the Hall). (See Nos. 460 to 470.)

F. WALKER.

125. Portrait of Washington Allston. Painted in London, about 1807. Bequest of John E. Allston.

GILBERT STUART: b. Rhode Island, 1755; d. Boston, 1828.

Educated at the University of Glasgow. Pupil of Benj. West, in London. After having practised with great success as a portrait painter in London, he returned to America in 1792, and settled for a time in Philadelphia. In 1807 he removed to Boston, where he afterwards died.

126. Washington. The "Athenæum" Head.

Painted from life, in 1796. Bought after Stuart's death, of his widow, and presented to the Boston Athenæum.

"A letter of Stuart's which appeared in the New York Evening Post in 1863, attested by three gentlemen of Boston, with one from Washington, making the appointment for a sitting, proves the error long current in regard both to the dates and the number of this artist's original portraits of Washington. He there distinctly states that he executed but three from life, the first of which was so unsatisfactory that he destroyed it; the second was the picture for Lord Lansdowne; and the third, the one now belonging to the Boston Athenæum. The finishing touches were put to the one in September, 1795; to the other, at Philadelphia, in the spring of 1796. This last, it appears by a letter of Mr. Custis, which we have examined, was undertaken against the desire of Washington, and at the earnest solicitation of his wife, who wished a portrait from life of her illustrious husband, to be placed among the other family pictures at Mt. Vernon. For this express purpose, and to gratify her, the artist commenced the work, and Washington agreed to sit once more. It was left intentionally unfinished."

This painting, in which the left side of the face is turned to the spectator, is the third portrait mentioned above; of it some fifty copies by Stuart's hands have been traced.

The second is now in London. Of the first, painted in 1795, and subsequently rubbed out, in which the right side of the face was shown, only three or perhaps four copies are known to exist.

127. Martha Washington.

Painted at the same time as the above.

198. Fruit and Vegetables.

Upon a table covered with an olive cloth are grouped fruits and vegetables, rendered with extraordinary vigor and truth. On the left, seven quinces, some of which are still attached to the branch; on the right, gourds and melons, and two bunches of asparagus. Behind, two willow baskets hold peaches, nectarines, plums, bunches of white and black grapes, and branches of plum-tree, figs and mulberries, loaded with fruit. Very fine piece of painting. Engraved in L'Art by Em. Salmon.

Canvas: height, 0 m. 82 cent.; width, 0 m. 95 cent.

From a bequest of Sidney Bartlett.

SIMON VERELST: entered in 1666 in the Association of Artists at the Hague.

199. Still Life.

A dead partridge is suspended by a string tied to its claw the left wing broken; below, a kingfisher lying upon the table. Verelst, whose principal compositions are highly prized in the English collections, is an artist of very great talent, who has been surpassed by no one in the line to which he specially devoted himself. He reproduced the plumage of birds and their multiple harmonies with the most extraordinary fidelity. Signed in full upon the table.

HANS HOLBEIN (attributed to): b. Augsburg, 1498; d. in London, 1554.

German school. A protégé at Basle of the printer Auerbach, whose editions he enriched with remarkable compositions, and of Erasmus, of whom he made an excellent portrait, he quickly acquired a great reputation. On his going to England, Erasmus intrusted him with his portrait for Sir Thomas More, his friend, and added a hearty letter of recommendation. He arrived in England in 1525. The High Chancellor received him with distinction, lodged him in his palace, occupied him for three years, and presented him to the king, Henry VIII., who appointed him the royal painter, and covered him with honors. He died at London, 1554, of the plague.

204. A Donor and his two patron saints, Peter with the keys, Paul with a sword. German school of the first half of the sixteenth century. Attributed to Hans Holbein the younger.

This picture was bought at Leipsic, where it had been in the possession of one family for a couple of centuries, by a young American, who took it to Berlin and submitted it to the judgment of an expert, by whom it was pronounced to be an original by Holbein.

So many false attributions of pictures to famous painters have, however, been made, even by the best connoisseurs, that it is well to avoid positiveness in such matters. The picture is certainly a most excellent representative of the school of Holbein, if it be not by the master himself. Every part, even to the most minute accessories, is highly finished; the shadows are transparent; the robe of St. Peter and the missal rich in color; the subdued arabesques in the background charming in taste; and lastly, the hands, like those painted by Holbein, are so literally rendered that their truth to life can only be appreciated by looking at them with a magnifying-glass.

Between the head of the donor and the heads of the saints, there is a strange disproportion in respect to size, which, more than anything else in this picture, would inspire doubt as to its having been painted by the great artist of Augsburg and Basle. The heads of the saints are not unworthy of him; that of St. Paul is intellectual and refined, and that of St. Peter, though of a somewhat common type, is full of sentiment.

PETER PAUL RUBENS: b. Westphalia, 1577; d. Antwerp, 1640.

Studied in Antwerp; resided in Italy and Spain, 1600–1608; afterwards settled in Antwerp, and died there, 1640. In 1625 he completed the celebrated series of pictures for the palace of the Luxembourg, now in the Louvre, commemorating the marriage of Marie de Medicis and Henry IV. of France. In 1628 he was sent on a diplomatic mission to Philip IV. of Spain by the Infanta Isabella, and in the following year he was sent on a similar mission to Charles I. of England, by whom he was knighted in 1630. He died possessed of immense wealth, and was buried with extraordinary pomp in the church of St. Jacques, in Antwerp. His pictures are exceedingly numerous, amounting to several thousands, but many of them were painted from his sketches by his scholars.

"Rubens," says Sir Joshua Reynolds, "was perhaps the greatest master in the mechanical part of the art, the best workman with his tools, that ever exercised a pencil. . . . His animals, particularly his lions and horses, are so admirable that it may be said they were never properly represented but by him. His portraits rank with the best works of the painters who have made that branch of the art the sole business of their lives. The same may be said of his landscapes. Rubens's masterpiece is generally considered 'The Descent from the Cross,' at Antwerp. He is still seen to great advantage at Antwerp; but probably the best idea of his great and versatile powers is conveyed by the collection at Munich, in which are ninety-five of his works, several of them masterpieces."

213. The Jealous Husband. [1060.]

A middle-aged man, driven by jealousy, leaves his study and descends the stairs softly to surprise his wife, who is talking with a young man in a room on the ground floor. Very fine example of the master; a picture worthy of his two celebrated compositions of "The Listener," one of which is at Buckingham Palace, and the other in the gallery of the Duke of Wellington, London.

216. The Usurer.

In a sombre room a widow hands a parchment, with seals attached, to an old man. A little basket holding papers hangs upon her left arm, and in her right hand she holds a handkerchief with which she dries her tears. The old man, seated before a table covered with a red-striped cloth and heaped up with money and precious objects, wears a red cap. In his left hand he holds a piece of money, which he was preparing to weigh in the scales when interrupted by the entrance of the woman. He remains untouched by the despair which she exhibits. On the left a green curtain. This picture, of very fine harmony, broad touch, and great spirit of observation, is signed in full, and has been engraved by Leopold Flameng.

222. The Interior of a Butcher's Shop.

In the foreground at the right, a young and pretty girl is cleaning the lungs and liver of an enormous ox suspended at the centre of the picture. She is seen in profile turned to the right, and looking in the opposite direction to watch a dog who is drinking the blood which has fallen into a pan placed under the ox. The butcher is passing out by a door in the background on the right, where are seen near a fireplace the master of the house and a servant. The head of the animal is placed upon a bench. On the left the hide is thrown in a heap upon the floor, and the tongue is hung upon the wall. A wild duck, a cabbage leaf, and some household utensils complete this strikingly realistic picture, in which Teniers shows his skill in reproducing everything with that scrupulous exactitude and facility of execution, that delicacy, and that power of harmony which distinguish him in such a high degree. This vigorous painting — model of finished work — was etched by the master himself. Signed in full below at the right. Smith, Catalogue raisonné, Vol. III., p. 397, No. 517.

Two young children are amusing themselves blowing soap-bubbles from a window, decorated on the outside with two allegorical caryatides of Freedom and Servitude, and with a bas-relief representing cupids playing. The little boy, sitting upon the window-seat, holds a pipe in his hand and watches the ascent of one of the bubbles. The little girl, inside, holds a shell with the soapsuds. A curtain, partly lifted, discloses some pieces of furniture in the room. Canvas: height, 0 m. 48 cent.; width, 0 m. 40 cent.

228. Vase of Flowers.

A vase of sculptured marble, on which are represented children wrestling, stands in a niche upon a griotte marble bracket, and holds a superb bunch of roses, narcissus, hyacinths, primroses, and peonies, with poppy buds at the top, just ready to open. A rose upon which rests a butterfly, and a peony with broken stalk, hang over the edge of the vase. Very important work of the master. Signed in full, on the right, upon the plinth. 235. Skirt of the Forest. [1121.]

A marsh extends over all the foreground and in the distance towards the right, enclosed by banks covered with a luxuriant vegetation. The forest begins on the left, and the foliage of the beech, tinged with yellow by the rays of the sun, detaches itself from the darker foliage of the oak and alders. A man is fishing with a rod, and some ducks swim in the water filled with snags and weeds. Landscape full of grandeur, and executed in the most skilful manner. Signed with a monogram.

236. The Ruined Cottage.

In the centre of the composition, near a tumble-down cottage which rises beside a sandy and rough road, a horseman has just alighted. A farm boy, who is looking at a little dog, holds the horse, which is a dappled gray. Before the hut, a valet seated on the ground keeps watch upon another dog and the baggage of the traveller. At the left, where the road forks, a man and a woman are resting in a meadow. On the right, a path leads to a field and to a farm-house surrounded by trees. The sky is filled with clouds, which seem to presage bad weather, but the rays of the sun dissipate them here and there, and strike upon the traveller. The figures are by Philip Wouwerman. This picture, of high rank in the works of the artist, figured at the celebrated exhibition of "Treasures of Art" at Manchester, the label of which is upon the back. Described with the greatest praise by Burger in his "Treasures of Art Exhibited at Manchester."

Canvas stretched on wood: height, 0 m. 42 cent.; width, 0 m. 51 cent.

239. Dordrecht.

In a meadow near the Meuse, a brown cow with a white head is smelling of some thistles. In the centre, a yellow cow, and a black one with white spots; beyond are lying a red cow and two others partly concealed, with a red cow spotted with white as keynote, turned toward the river, which is rippled by small boats. In the distance, Dordrecht in silhouette, the buildings of which are seen in profile against a sky gilded by the rays of a beautiful sunset. Very fine example of the master; a painting full of spirit, luminous, and with that free yet loaded brush which places Cuyp above all praise.

PRINT DEPARTMENT.

EXHIBITION OF NEW ACCESSIONS.

OPENING MAY 21, 1896.

The last Exhibition of New Accessions opened on June 3, 1894. The additions made since that date to the several collections in the keeping of the Museum of Fine Arts, — its own collection and the Gray and John Witt Randall Collections, which are the property of Harvard College, — are so numerous that it is even less possible than usual to exhibit more than a selection of the prints received. As usual, also, most of the new accessions are gifts from generous friends of the Museum. Of purchases, only a single one of some importance was made by the Museum itself. On the other hand, the additions to the Gray and John Witt Randall Collections, by purchase, out of the funds provided by the founders of these collections, are of more than usual extent and interest.

It is pleasant to be able to state that among the donors the engravers of the United States are again represented by several names. Their liberality may be interpreted as showing that they appreciate the efforts of the Museum to provide an archive wherein their achievements may be deposited in the best shape, — that is to say in proofs, — for the information and admiration of posterity. At the head of the list this time stands Mr. W. H. W. Bicknell, the etcher, with no less than one hundred and eighty proofs, including his skilful copies of Cruikshank, etc., and his delicate renderings of book illustrations from designs by Mr. Edmund H. Garrett, as well as some of his early original work, and the large portraits from photographs more lately produced by him. Next in order comes Mr. W. J. Linton, the veteran engraver and poet, who, although an Englishman, has now lived among us for something like thirty years. To a volume containing one hundred proofs of his own work, he has added (besides a number of smaller gifts) a further volume with one hundred proofs by English wood-engravers of the first half of this century, — men like Clennell, Nesbit, Branston, Thompson, Orin Smith, etc. Another wood-engraver of note, Mr. Wm. Jay Dana, follows with eighty-seven proofs, and smaller donations of the same nature have been made by Mr. M. Lamont Brown and Mr. H. F. W. Lyouns. From Mr. E. D. French, of New York, comes a fine set of twenty-four proofs of his "ex libris" plates, including an impression from the plate which first led him into this kind of work, although its purpose was in reality a "take off" on the "ex libris" collector. It may also be mentioned here that Messrs. A. W. Elson & Co. have signified their intention of depositing in the collection of the Museum proofs, in duplicate, of the series of American portraits which they have begun to publish in etching and in photogravure, and that, in pursuance of this laudable intention, they have sent eighteen proofs as a first instalment.

Among the donors not engravers or publishers, Mr. S. P. Avery, of New York, would again lead as in former years (with one hundred and thirteen numbers, including all the Zilckens shown in the Second Print Room), if he had not been outdone this time by Mr. Thomas Gaffield, who has followed up his gift of a valuable collection of books to the library of the Museum, by an equally valuable gift of etchings, engravings, lithographs, etc. (two hundred and eighty-one numbers), to the Print Department. The whole of the Third Print Room has been filled with selections from Mr. Gaffield's gift, but his name will be frequently seen also on the labels in the First and Second Rooms. Among other important donations must be specified the great work on Adolph Menzel, the gift of Miss Minns, which formed the basis of the Menzel Exhibition, held from Oct. 1 to Dec. 9, 1894, and which, therefore, is not included in the present exhibition. As of especially timely interest may furthermore be noted a number of posters produced by Cheret about twenty years ago, the gift (besides other lithographs) of Mr. P. Thuerwanger, a personal friend of Cheret's. Through the kindness of Prof. Wm. Roese, of the German Government Printing Office at Berlin, the Museum has again received a large number of the admirable reproductions of rare prints made at the establishment named.

As it is manifestly impossible to refer here in detail to all the gifts received, a list of donors during the period embraced is appended to the present statement. From this list it will be seen that the Print Department of the Museum has again attracted donations, not only from various parts of the United States, but also from Europe. Where no city is given in the list, it is understood that the respective donor resides in Boston or one of its suburbs.

The purchase by the Museum of Fine Arts, above alluded to, consisted principally of the collection of proofs of wood-engravings from his own designs left by the late J. G. Chapman. As this work goes back to the time of Anderson, Adams, Howland, Kinnersly, Bookhout, etc., the acquisition of these proofs has added largely to the already very full and important collection belonging to the Museum of Fine Arts, illustrating the history of wood-engraving in the United States. It is well supplemented by some of the purchases recently made for the John Witt Randall Collection, which include the series of proofs published by the Scribners, under the title of "The Art of the American Wood Engraver," with text by the late Mr. Hamerton, and Mr. Cole's "Old Dutch and Flemish Masters," published by the Century Company, with text by Mr. Vandyck and the engraver. It can be claimed with more than probability that this division of the print collections now united in the keeping of the Museum of Fine Arts is unequalled by any other collection, either public or private, in the country.

Among the curiosities of the Chapman collection is a number of proofs of large posters, black as well as in color, designed for Van Amburg's menagerie more than half a century ago by J. G. Chapman, and engraved by Bookhout. It is quite likely that these proofs are unique.

Of the purchases made by Harvard College, by far the most important is the large engraving, "The Assumption of the Virgin" (Pass. V, page 42, No. 100; Kolloff, in Meyer's "Lexikon," II, page 610, No. 58), formerly attributed to Botticelli. The fact that it is now generally and more prudently described as an engraving by an unknown Florentine of the fifteenth century robs it of none of its interest or value. It is decidedly, from the point of view of the historian of art in general, as well as from that of the student of the history of engraving in particular, one of the most important prints, possibly the most important print, in any American collection. The influence of Fra Filippo and Botticelli is very obviously apparent in the works of the Florentine engravers of the fifteenth century, and this print shows the highest achievement reached by their art under that influence. The preservation of the impression is remarkable, and although it may possibly be later than the impression acquired last year by the British Museum with the Malcolm Collection (an impression which cost its former owner £800),— as it shows a number of scratches in the plate, which the Malcolm impression does not show,— it is, nevertheless, quite as good in essentials. The fact that the impression in the Malcolm Collection went to the British Museum made it possible to secure this very desirable print for Boston, as the British Museum already had an impression among its earlier possessions. Through the courtesy of Prof. Sidney Colvin, who is at the head of the Print Room of the British Museum, it was offered to Harvard College, and the committee in charge of such matters did not hesitate to buy it out of the funds at the command of the John Witt Randall Collection.

Among the purchases for the Gray Collection the first place is due to a fine copy of Dürer's large "Passion" on wood, which completes the set of the series published by Dürer. Other purchases for the same collection are: — A considerable number of chiaroscuros, mostly by Italian engravers of the sixteenth century, and mostly in good impressions and in good condition; a few very fine engravings by Dürer and by Schongauer; two engravings by the "Master M. Z.," hitherto unrepresented in the collection; some few specimens of early Italian work by Zoan Andrea, etc.; a small number of etchings, including specimens by Lautensack, Hirschvogel, Ruysdael ("The Field bordered by Trees," B. 5), Teniers, Ludwig Richter, etc.; a complete set of the marvelously delicate portraits engraved by J. B. de Grateloup; a collection of fine proofs (mostly knife proofs) of wood-engravings from designs by Ludwig Richter, in part obtained from Prof. Buerkner, of Dresden, by whom or in whose establishment they were engraved; and lastly, but by far not least, a good collection of lithographs, principally by Raffet, the great French master of lithography. A few illustrated books of the sixteenth century (including a splendid copy in fine old binding of "De humani corporis fabrica," by Andreas Vesalius, Basel, 1543) and one of the seventeenth century, are also worth naming.

It will be seen from this incomplete enumeration that the aim has been, as heretofore, to round out the collections in their various parts, so as to bring them nearer to that never-to-be-attained end, — historical completeness.

A synopsis of the principal contents of the various cases follows.

FIRST AND SECOND PRINT ROOMS.

Case 1, 2. The Heidelberg "Dance of Death." (Reproduction.) — Illustrated books of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. — Old Italian woodcuts, including a reduced fac-simile of the view of Venice, of the year 1500. — Wood-engravings by W. J. Linton and other English engravers.

Case 3. Two cuts from "The Apocalypse," a block book of the fifteenth century. — "Christ crucified," woodcut of the fifteenth century. — Seven woodcuts from the "Ordinações" of Dom Manoel, Lisbon, 1514. (Reproductions made at the Portuguese Government Printing Office, at Lisbon.)

Cases 4–9. Woodcuts from designs by Dürer. (The illustrations of "The Life of the Virgin," Case 8, etc., are reproductions made at the German Government Printing Office, Berlin.)

Case 10, 11. Woodcuts and chiaroscuros from designs by Dürer, Aldegrever, Cranach, and Goltzius.

Cases 12–19. Chiaroscuros, mostly by Italian engravers of the sixteenth century. (See also the frames over Cases 18 and 19. The fine impressions of "The Triumph of Cæsar," by Andrea Andreani after Andrea Mantegna, are a gift from Mr. Edward Habich, of Cassel, to the Gray Collection.)

Cases 20-22. Proofs of wood-engravings from designs by Ludwig Richter.

Case 23. Proofs of wood-engravings by Adams, Howland, Kinnersley, etc., from designs by J. G. Chapman.

Cases 24-31. Proofs of wood-engravings by Kruell, Brown, Lyouns, Dana, Cole, and other American engravers.

Case 34. Dry-points and etchings, partly in reproductions, by the Master of the Amsterdam Cabinet, Urs Graf (reproduction of the oldest dated etching known, 1513), Lautensack, Hirschvogel, Hans Bol, De Vadder, Van Dyck, Van de Wyngaerde, Soutman, and Tiepolo, etc.

Case 37. Etchings of the seventeenth to the nineteenth centuries, including Rembrandt, Ruysdael, Teniers, Berghem, Dujardin, Richter, etc. — Reproduction of Rembrandt's dry-point, "Christ presented to the People," B. 76.

Case 40. Modern French and English etchings.

Cases 43–50, 52. Etchings by Ph. Zilcken.

Cases 51, 53, 54-56. Etchings by Whistler: "Scenes on the Thames and other subjects."

Cases 55, 57–66. Etchings by W. H. W. Bicknell.

Case 67. "The Assumption of the Virgin," Florentine engraving of the fifteenth century, formerly attributed to Sandro Botticelli.

Case 68. Florentine engravings of the fifteenth century.

Case 69. Engravings by Zoan Andrea, Giov. Ant. d Brescia, Nicoletto da Modena, and Jacopo de Barbari.

Case 70. Photographs of three Spanish engravings of the fifteenth century.

Case 71. Engravings by Schongauer, Dürer, the Master M. Z., Aldegrever, the Master I. B., and Jacob Bink (reproduction).

Cases 73, 74, 76. Complete set of the portraits engraved by J. B. de Grateloup.

Case 75. Bookplates ("Ex libris") engraved by E. D. French.

Case 77. Engraving by Burdet. — Etchings by Giroux, Unger, and Koepping.

Cases 78-81, 83. Lithographs by Charlet, Gavarni, Raffet, Rambert, Nanteuil, Lunois, and Greiner. (Among the Raffets, in Case 79, will be found fine old impressions of his two most celebrated compositions, "Le Réveil" and "La Revue Nocturne.")

Case 82. Three "Herkomer-Gravures" (spongotypes, painter-engravings) by Hubert Herkomer, R. A. — "John Marshall," photogravure from a painting by Inman, by A. W. Elson & Co.

Cases 84–87. Engravings from frescos by Fra Angelico in the chapel of Nicholas V., in the Vatican, at Rome.

THIRD PRINT ROOM.

Cases 88-106. This room, as before stated, is filled entirely with selections from the gift of Mr. Thomas Gaffield. Most of the specimens shown are proofs of engravings by the modern masters of the burin, which have been grouped together under the names of the painters, Raphael, Correggio, etc. The last alcove, Cases 102–106, is devoted mainly to English engravers and painters, including Turner, and a selection from the plates of Mr. Ruskin's "Examples of the Architecture of Venice."

GALLERY OF TEXTILES.

In addition to what is shown in this room, the TEXTILE DEPARTMENT comprises some thousands of specimens of interest to the practical designer and the student of design, especially of brocades of the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries, and of Japanese textiles.

The objects not on exhibition can be seen by students on asking in writing for an appointment.

EGYPTIAN AND PERUVIAN FABRICS.

Under the Roman rule in Egypt the methods of burial were subjected to a great change; the dead were no longer swathed in long bands of linen, but were buried in the clothes worn in life, plain or decorated as befitted the rank of the wearer. Numbers of these vestments have recently been found, chiefly in or near the Fayoum. Of linen, wool, and silk, they date from the first to perhaps the eighth century of our era. The earlier show the influence of Greek and Roman art in their decoration; later, as the Copts and the Christian religion grew in power, the designs became more Byzantine in character.

The fragments here exhibited, coming from tombs at Akmim (old Panopolis) and at San (Tanis), show that the decorative work is akin to modern methods of weaving tapestry, rather than to embroidery. M. Gerspach, administrator of the National Manufactory of the Gobelins, says: "The Egyptian tapestries and the Gobelins result from an identical method, save in a few minor details, and I have been able, without difficulty, to reproduce Coptic tapestries by the pupils of our schools of needlework."

The decorative designs here shown have mostly been cut from the dresses of which they were a part. The main body of the garments being of common shuttle weaving, the designs were worked in by tapestry weaving as an integral part of the fabric while it was in the loom. The difference in texture of the two methods, tapestry and shuttle weaving, can be seen in Frame 12, and especially in the large toga in the Second Egyptian Room, which is still intact. In this five large circular designs have been woven into a sheet of fine linen measuring 10 feet 3 inches by 7 feet 3 inches.

To the remote period when this art of weaving takes its origin, no date can be given. From a mural painting in the tombs of Beni Hassan, about twenty-eight hundred years before Christ, we know that the Egyptians then used a loom in essential points similar to that of the Gobelins to-day. And in a painting on a Greek vase of about the middle of the fifth century before Christ, Penelope is shown seated at a similar loom on which she has woven a broad band of figures of mythical winged animals on a dark background.

FRAMES 1 TO 21. EGYPTIAN TEXTILES FROM AKMIM. FRAGMENTS OF BORDERS OF TOGAS, OF STRIPES, AND VARIOUS DESIGNS FOR TUNICS.

1 and 2. TUNICS.

The tunic was the undergarment of the Romans; the toga, the outer robe. A fine specimen of the toga can be seen in the store-room for textiles.

8. Broad dark band down the centre, and pendant shoulder band, portions of a garment fringed with loops of flax.

9. Specimen of the material called by the Greeks, Kaunakes, coarse linen with shaggy looped threads. Garments made of it have, in modern as well as ancient days, been mistaken for fleeces.

10. Three bands of human figures and animals; portrait (?) head in border of scroll-work; medallion, three ibexes, with a border of vases of plants.

12. The upper specimen, a vase holding a fig-tree (?) in which a boy gathers fruit, shows the method of work.

13 to 18. Most of these are of COPTIC origin. The designs on the centre strip on 16 are amusing in their rudeness, — Jonah and the Whale, Daniel in the Lion's Den, "Get thee behind me, Satan."

19. Fragments of ladies' head dresses, knitted, drawn-work, etc., of linen. These are from Hawara, and date about 200 B. C.

20. Specimens of silk.

Most of the examples are worked with linen dyed in purple, so-called, or some variant of that color. Others show the use of wool as well as linen dyed with other colors; they are generally of a later epoch than the foregoing; some are distinctly of Byzantine character; they date probably from the fourth to the eighth century, A. D., the work is more brilliant in color, no longer classic in design, often very rude.

The Egyptian textiles are the gift of Miss Amelia B. Edwards, Denman W. Ross, Mrs. James T. Fields, Wm. C. Hill, N. C. Hathaway, and Charles G. Loring.

22. Fragments from the dress of a woman buried near San. She was found wrapped in fifteen different dresses or robes. Gift of the Egypt Exploration Fund.

Nos. 24–40. PERUVIAN textiles found in tombs.

The whole collection includes a number of shirts, scarfs, wraps, etc., woven with various designs of grotesque faces, figures of men, birds, etc.; a few are painted; also some fantastic dolls.

Gift of Edward W. Hooper.

EUROPEAN TAPESTRIES.

From the Fifteenth to the Nineteenth Centuries.

"Tapestry is neither real weaving nor true embroidery, but unites in its working these two principles into one. It is not embroidery, though so very like it, for tapestry is not worked upon what is really a web, having both warp and woof, but upon a series of closely set, fine strings. Though wrought in a loom and upon a warp stretched along a frame, it has no woof thrown across those threads with a shuttle or any like appliance, but its web is done with many short threads, all variously colored, and put in by a kind of a needle. With the upright as with the flat frame, the workman went the same road to his labors; but in either of these ways he had to grope in the dark a great deal on his path. In both he was obliged to put in the threads on the back or wrong side of the piece, following the sketch as best as he could behind the strings or warp. As the face was downward in the flat frame he had no means of looking at it to correct a fault. In the upright frame he might go in front, and with his own doings in open view on the one hand and the original design full before him on the other, he could mend as he went on, step by step, the smallest mistake, were it but a single thread." — Dr. Rock's Descriptive Catalogue.

"Tapestry differs from embroidery in this, that in it the pictures produced are an integral part of the texture, while in the latter they are simply superimposed on a tissue already existing. It also differs from woven brocaded fabrics by being always the work of the hand, and not an unlimited mechanical repetition of the same design; so that each piece produced is distinctly original." M. Müntz. — La Tapisserie.

No. 49. In the Textile Gallery.

This magnificent tapestry of Flemish origin dates probably from the middle of the 15th Century. It is in four compartments, — The Creation of Eve; The Baptism of Christ, The Birth of Christ; and The Crucifixion. Note especially the figure of God the Father in the first. At the foot of each compartment are two life-size figures drawn from the Old and New Testaments, — Jeremiah and Peter, David and Andrew, Isaiah and James, Ozias and John.

Mrs. John Wright.

No. 50. In the Textile Gallery.

"Crossing of the Red Sea." Dating from the close of the 15th or the early part of the 16th century. Origin, Flanders. Silk and wool, with gold in some of the costumes for high lights. The gold has become tarnished by time, and shadow is produced in place of high light, but it is sparingly used.

It bears a great resemblance to some celebrated tapestries woven about that period, among which are "Chastity," a suite owned by the South Kensington Museum, dated 1507–1570.

It was probably painted by the same artist as these, and perhaps woven by the same master, in one of those ateliers, half industrial, half artistic, belonging to one of the great tapestry guilds so prevalent in the Middle Ages, and which were in full vigor at this period.

In the border, which is narrow and simple with flowers, vines, and ribbons, the Gothic feeling is combined with that of the Renaissance. In the foliage of the subject and the massing of the Egyptians, the Gothic feeling is also evident. The characters are Flemish, and show the influence of the Flemish painters; but the grouping of the Hebrews into separate pictures is more in the manner of the Italian painters.

The costumes, as is customary in tapestry, are of the time of the weaving of the tapestry, and not of the subject. The Egyptians are in the armor of the 15th century, and one will note the exaggerated plumes, which, according to Planché, became general during the latter part of the 15th century.

Purchased from the Otis Norcross Fund.

No. 51. In the Hall.

Subject: "THE ASSUMPTION OF THE VIRGIN MARY." 17th century? Origin, Italy or Flanders? School of Raphael. From the Annunziata Convent, Naples, to which it was given by Cardinal Caraffa, whose arms it bears. Purchased from Sig. Alessandro Castellani.

Its workmanship is very delicate and beautiful, with the color now lowered but little, the gold still bright enough to give true value to the high lights.

Boston Athenæum. Lawrence Collection.

No. 52. In the Hall.

"DAVID AND SAUL." 17th century. Origin, Delft? Painter, Carel van Mander. Fabricator, Francois Spierinck? Silk and wool.

(Signed) I·K MANDER·FECIT·AN·1619.

Carel van Mander, the elder, was a painter and writer on art, of noble family, and early displayed a lively genius for poetry and belles-lettres. We are indebted to him for his account of the Italian and Flemish schools of painting from 1366 to 1604. To him or to his son, Carel van Mander the younger, born at Courtrai about 1579, who was attached to the works of Spierinck at Delft, this tapestry may be ascribed. He executed some hangings for Christian IV., of Denmark. Died in Holland, 1623. In the first part of the 17th century the tapestry weavers of Delft had acquired considerable renown, and their works were much sought after. The most esteemed of all was Francois Spierinck.

Purchased from the San Donato sale. The border has often been engraved as a model of what is best in design in the art of tapestry borders.

Miss Charlotte Hunnewell.

No. 54. In the Hall.

Subject: "SUMMER." 17th or 18th century? Silk, wool, and gold.

The design and brilliancy of coloring of this tapestry would indicate a Flemish origin. But at the time of its purchase it was catalogued as made at the Gobelins. The series of the Four Seasons designed by Lebrun was worked at the Gobelins three times in the 17th Century and again in 1708 and 1712.

This is one of a series of the Four Seasons, three of which were purchased by the late George O. Hovey at a sale of tapestries belonging to the "Maison d'Orleans" in 1852. They were rescued from fire at the Chateau at Neuilly and later from the Boston fire of 1872.

Subject: "THE TRIUMPH OF PEACE." 17th century. Origin, Brussels. Painter, L. Van Schoor.

This was sold under the title of "France, crowned by Victory and attended by Minerva."

Van Schoor painted a number of cartoons for the ateliers of Brussels and Antwerp. Two tapestries made at Brussels, after his designs, are in the collection of the Garde Meuble, Paris. Gift of Miss Deacon.

Subject: Coat of Arms, with supports, of the class called "Tapisseries à devises et à armoiries." 17th century. Origin, Flanders?

These tapestries seem to have been in vogue at an early period. They were at first very simple, and their usage most common, though to-day they are rarely found. "The coats of arms are generally surrounded with lambrequins, surmounted by a helmet, and supported by figures or fantastic animals."

Miss S. G. Putnam.

Subject: "THE LAST SUPPER." 17th century. Origin, Aubusson. Wool.

The marks upon this tapestry are "Manufacture Royale d'Aubusson," with the name of the weaver following.

Many of the products of Aubusson were coarse in material and rude in design, though some of the ateliers have produced tapestries rivalling the Gobelins and Beauvais. The "Last Supper," notably Da Vinci's fresco, has frequently formed a subject for tapestries.

BORDER, GOBELIN. 18th century. Semi-reclining figure of a man playing a pipe.

> The famous manufactory of the Gobelin was founded at Paris towards the end of the 15th century by Jean Gobelin, a native of Rheims. In 1662 Louis XIV. and his minister, Colbert, united in this establishment all the trades which were under the royal protection, such as potters, weavers, etc. Charles le Brun, the painter (born 1619, died 1690), was appointed its director in 1663. He furnished designs for many fine pieces of tapestry, which were surrounded by rich framework of fruits and flowers designed by Baptiste Monnoyer.

POTTERY AND PORCELAIN.

THE interest in fictile wares has always existed, and it always must exist. From time to time it reaches a sort of high tide when all the world consents to look and to know something about it. Within the last twenty years this interest has been great, and it is likely to continue.

The fact that pottery and porcelain belong to the daily business of life, and that they are indispensable to the great event of that life, — a man's dinner, — make them indeed objects in which all may take a living interest.

Among the very first works which the hand of man has formed are pots and dishes; and one of the first machines was the potter's wheel, which is in use to-day as it was in the days of the pyramid builders. One other reason why pottery is among the most interesting of the works of man is, that it most easily receives the impression which the taste, the skill, the art of the workman can give it.

We thus get in the pot not only the useful thing, but whatever of form, of decoration, of beauty, of art, the soul of the workman may strive to express. The study of pottery, therefore, is, in some degree, the study of a part of man's soul. From the very outset, even as far back as the "Stone age," there were attempts at beauty of form and fitness of decoration. We find this expression of the artistic feeling in its pottery among all nations, from the Egyptians, through the Assyrians, the Greeks, the Moors, the Italians, the Germans; everywhere, and in all nations.

The Incas of Peru and the Toltecs of Mexico had their peculiarities of form and of decoration, though it must be observed that these earliest forms have a close likeness to the earliest attempts of all other peoples.

But when we get to a higher style of expression, we find the peculiarities most marked; and in such nations as the Chinese and the Japanese they reach art of the highest quality, and most especially in COLOR and decoration. There seems to have been, and to be, in the Asiatic races, this genius for color quite marvellous and quite superior to anything the white races have done. This is seen not only in its porcelains, but as well in its carpets, its shawls, its stuffs.

The loan collections in the Museum show excellent and varied examples of this.

It may be observed that the Chinese and Japanese artists did not sit down to copy a flower, or a tree, or person. There is a certain something which we choose to call the ideal which they caught. May it not be called the soul of the object rather than its body? And yet their work is not slovenly and careless, but is marked above all others by thoroughness and care.

The Greek artist appears again to have found his highest expression in FORM; so that in the Greek vase we look for and find what we feel to be grace, beauty, and use in perfect combination. The collection in the Museum presents good illustrations of this; while the paintings upon them do not always reach a high standard of art. Nor must we claim that every Greek amphora or kylix is perfection even in form. It is not so. Nor is every picture of Raphael perfect; nor every play of Shakespeare divine. Only, among the multitude of Greek vases, etc., which the tombs have preserved for us, are to be found examples of form which have not been and cannot be surpassed.

The visitor should notice the collection of Etruscan vases in the Museum; and should observe that they are quite different from the Greek, which for so long a time have been miscalled Etruscan. This collection of Etruscan fictile work is most rare and valuable, as illustrating the art of pottery.

We find, again, among the Arabs and Moors, and especially those of Spain, another expression of art in pottery, which is beautiful and peculiar to them. Their decorations did not include the human figure, but were geometrical and whimsical, sometimes including plant forms and animals in great variety, — what have come to be termed Arabesques. Some excellent examples are in the collection. But the coloring of those made in Spain bore a shimmer, called a lustre, which is peculiar, and seems to have been original. It was produced by the use of mineral salts or oxides.

This Moorish ware was the parent of the Italian Maiolica, of which some good and very valuable examples have been presented to the Museum. When these Maiolica wares were first made in Italy (about A. D. 1500), they all had this lustre, and it was greatly enhanced in beauty above the work of the Moors by Mastro Giorgio at Gubbio, fine examples of whose work sell for enormous prices; but most of what is now called Maiolica does not bear the lustre, as the examples in the Museum make apparent. Both the Moorish and the Maiolica wares will repay attention, as they were the precursors of the porcelains and Faiences which afterward reached such great perfection in Europe.

Of European porcelains, the Dresden or Meissen and that of Sèvres reached the greatest perfectness, and have commanded most attention and most money. Examples of these can be studied at the Museum. But following the discovery of the true Kaolinic or China clay in Europe, Böttcher, about 1710, succeeded in making true porcelain in Saxony. During that century, porcelain manufactories were started in nearly all the countries of Europe, in which porcelain of greater or less perfectness was made. The study and collection of these has now become important, enlisting much mind and much money. These collections are of great value, and it is not uncommon that as much as $10,000 is paid for a single vase or dish. Growing out of all this art and this interest comes the porcelain and pottery used in daily life. In these, within this half-century, have been great improvements, and to this every household bears its testimony. For thus helping to beautify and perfect our household life we may willingly thank the lovers and collectors of pottery and porcelain, and we may and do look to collections in Museums of Art, also, to help on the good work.

C. W. E.

Porcelain was made in Europe as early as the year 1581, under the patronage of Francis I., Duke of Tuscany. The manufactory had but a brief existence of about ten years. The next known attempt was made at St. Cloud, in the year 1695, by the Chicanneau family, where soft paste porcelain was made. In the year 1710 Böttcher had the honor to be the first to discover the art of making hard porcelain in Europe. Böttcher, born in Schleitz, in Prussia, received his education as an apothecary in Berlin, and in the year 1710, suspected of being an alchemist, fled to Saxony. Augustus II. hearing of him in Dresden, and supposing that he possessed the secret of making gold, took him under his patronage. It was while searching for the "philosopher's stone" that, in making a crucible in 1705, he discovered the nature of the clay to be Kaoline.* From that time he continued his experiments until hard porcelain was made.

The manufacture in Vienna was begun under one Stölzel, who fled from Meissen, in 1720. The Höchst pottery, in Mayence, began to make porcelain, under the direction of a workman from Vienna, named Ringler, in 1740. In Fürstenberg, the porcelain manufactory was established in 1750, by Pengraf, who came from Höchst. The establishment in Berlin was first attempted in 1751, but obtained little success until 1761, under Gottskowski.

The Frankenthal manufactory was established in 1755, by Paul Hannüg, who had been forced to leave Sèvres, and was assisted by Ringler, who, finding his secret had been stolen from him in Höchst, quitted that place and offered his services to Hannüg.

* KAOLINE, the Chinese name for porcelain earth, is composed of silica, alumina, and water (hydrous silicate of alumina). It is produced by the disintegration of the crystalline mineral, felspar, through the action of the atmosphere on granite and other rocks that contain it.

Feldspar, the Petuntze of the Chinese, consists of silica, alumina, and potash or soda, or both, and in the disintegration referred to it loses all the potash and soda and part of the silica, leaving only the remaining silica and the whole of the alumina, with which a small amount of water becomes combined. The kaoline resulting has an average composition as follows: —

Silica	47 per cent.
Alumina	40 "
Water	13 "

The Ludwigsburg factory was established in 1758, by Ringler, under the patronage of the Duke of Wurtemberg. In the same year the first manufactory in Thuringia was commenced.

In Russia, two manufactories were begun about the year 1756. In Holland, porcelain manufactories were established at Weesp, in 1764; at the Hague, in 1778; and at Amstel, 1782.

The Copenhagen works were begun in 1760. In Sweden they began to make porcelain, in the old manufactory of pottery, in Rörstrand, in 1735, and at Marieberg, in 1759.

Porcelain was made in France, after the first attempt at St. Cloud, in Vincennes, in 1740–1745. The works were removed to Sèvres in 1756. The Chantilly works were commenced in 1735; Sceaux, 1751; Strasbourg, 1752; Niderviller, 1765; Marseilles, 1766; Lille, 1785; Belleville, 1790.

In Italy, after the manufacture under the Medici ceased, there was no porcelain made until 1726, when one Francesco Vezzi established a manufactory in Venice, and was followed in 1735 by the Marquis Ginori, at Doccia, near Florence. In 1736, at Naples, the Capo di Monti manufactory was begun, under the patronage of Charles III.

In Spain, the only manufactory was that of Buen Retiro, near Madrid, established by Charles III. with workmen brought from Naples.

In England, the first porcelain works were erected at Bow, about 1740; the Chelsea, in 1745; Derby, 1750; Worcester, 1741; Caughley and Lowestoft, 1756; Plymouth, 1760; Bristol, 1772.

Josiah Wedgwood began his pottery works in 1752, but never made porcelain.

The collection here exhibited, though not large, is rich, especially in specimens of Chinese art. It is indebted to Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wales for the gift of six hundred and ninety-two pieces.

The visitor will find full and varied collections of antique Egyptian, Cyprian, Cretan, Etruscan, Grecian, and Græco-Italian vases and other pottery, including a large number of terra-cotta figures and heads, on the first floor in the "Egyptian" and "Greek Vase" rooms. In this room are, in Cases 1 to 4, specimens of Maiolica and Robbia ware; 5, Capo di Monti; Scandinavian, etc.; 6, Dresden and Vienna; 7, 8, 9, French; 10, 11, 12, 13, English; 14, 15 (flat cases), Maiolica and Faience; 17, Spanish; underneath, Bombay; 18, Delft, Grès de Flandres; 19 and 20, American pottery, Chelsea, Mass., Cincinnati, etc.; 21, pottery of the American Mound Builders; 22, Zuñi; 23, Chiriqui; 24 and 25, Mexican, San Salvador; 26, Peru; 27, 28, Kabyle, Moorish; 29, Terra-cottas; on the walls, Spanish, Persian tiles, and from Damascus and Jerusalem; 32 to 35, Japanese; 36, English figure pieces; 37 to 41, Chinese; 42, Persian; 44 and 45, Enamels; 46 and 47, Chinese; 48, Spanish. In the corridor will be found the unrivalled collection of Japanese pottery made by Mr. E. S. Morse, cases 1 to 40.

CASE 1.

MAIOLICA WARE.

In what is called Hispano-Moorish ware, we find the original source of this beautiful art-manufacture. Moorish potters were established in the island of Majorca (in the Tuscan dialect Maiolica) at a very early period, and fabricated earthenware plates distinguished for the beauty of their metallic oxide glaze. They adorned them with Arabic patterns and fantastic animals. The oldest establishment of this sort of pottery was at Malaga, where it was introduced by the Arabs or the Moors, who perhaps derived the secret of making it from Persia. The Pisans, who conquered the Balearic Islands in the twelfth century, are said to have brought the manufacture of Maiolica to Italy from Majorca. In the fifteenth century it was chiefly made at Faenza, under the names of pietra or terra di Faenza, whence the French derived the name of "faïence," which they applied to it. Unlike porcelain, it is made of common clay, and being only vitrified upon the surface retains a certain degree of porosity. That which was covered with a plumbiferous glaze, silicate of lead, was called "Mezza Maiolica." Thanks to the patronage of the Dukes of Urbino, the Maiolica made at Urbino, Castel Durante, Pesaro, and Gubbio attained a high degree of perfection during the first half of the sixteenth century, after which it began to decline under the growing taste for porcelain. The names of such distinguished artists as Giorgio Andreoli of Pavia, sculptor and potter established at Gubbio in 1498, whose plates are distinguished for their beautiful, iridescent glaze; of Francesco Xanto da Rovigo, of whose artistic skill the plate No. 7 (signed and dated 1532) is an example; and those of Guido and Orazio Fontana, who worked for Guidobaldo, Duke of Urbino (1540–1560), are connected with the great manufactories above mentioned. The largest platter, No. 6 (subject, the Triumph of Bacchus), and the two richly adorned and painted bottles (gourds), Nos. 8 and 9, are probably the work of Orazio Fontana.

The erroneous idea that Raphael made designs expressly for the Maiolica of Urbino and Castel Durante (whence the name Raphael ware, often given to it) may have arisen from the fact that some of the designs were taken from his works, or, as has been conjectured, from the substitution of his name for that of Raffaelino del Colle, a painter who worked for Guidobaldo I. della Rovere.

There is little doubt that the great reverence felt for the name of Raphael has contributed to the preservation of many of these fragile treasures, which were greatly valued by the principal families of Urbino and the Romagna.

The Duke Alfonso d'Este, who was himself an amateur potter, contributed not a little to the general use of Maiolica for domestic purposes by substituting it upon his own table for the plate which he was obliged to pawn to meet the expenses of the war which he and the Venetians waged with Pope Julius after the League of Cambray, in 1510. The Ferrarese factories were, for the most part, inactive from this time until 1522, when they again flourished, for we know that the celebrated painters, Giovanni and Battista Dossi, made designs for them in 1524. Duke Alfonso then wrote to Titian to procure for him a number of pieces of Maiolica from Murano. Among them were many Spezieria jars used to hold drugs. Of such jars we have specimens in Nos. 14 and 15, probably of Florentine manufacture.

No. 2 is an excellent example of the plates called "amatorii," or marriage plates. Upon these plates lovers caused the portraits of their betrothed to be painted, with such inscriptions as "Camilla bella," "Lucia diva," etc., etc., and sent them as presents, laden with fruits, sweetmeats, or confectionery.

CASES 1 and 3.

MAIOLICA.

Nos. 1 to 9 lent by the Athenæum.

1. MAIOLICA PLATE. Subject, a woman, with a drawn sword, about to slay a sleeping man. In the sky a deity in a chariot drawn by griffins. No mark. Attributed to Francisco Xanto. Lawrence Collection.

ROBBIA WARE. (Above and by the Side of Case 1.)

We now come to the works of a celebrated artist who combined sculpture and painting with the Keramic art, and originated a new and beautiful branch of decorative art. This was Lucca della Robbia, one of the most eminent of the many great Florentine artists of the fifteenth century. After long practising as a sculptor, he devoted himself to the discovery of a hard enamel which would give terra-cotta the durability of marble, and after repeated failures at length attained the desired result about the year 1443. With the true feeling of an artist, Lucca long used a pure white enamel upon the figures which he modelled, and preserved their sculptural feeling by keeping color in his backgrounds and accessories. Thinking, however, that his works might, if more highly colored, be used as substitutes for fresco painting, he afterwards added other hues than pure blue and green to his palette, and began to color the flesh parts and draperies of his figures. His nephew, Andrea, carried this still further, and under his hands and those of his four sons the distinctive character of pure Robbia ware was gradually lost, until it became an enamelled picture not much above the level of wax-work. The difference between the art in its purity and its decline may be judged of by the "Madonna and Child" attributed to Lucca, and the "Madonna adoring the Infant Jesus," by Andrea or one of his sons. The first is a pure and charming work, which, though by no means one of his best, will give the visitor some idea of the great talent of the artist and the plastic propriety of his work. The second will show him how, by overstepping the bounds which should separate painting from sculpture, a hybrid species of art was produced which had the merits of neither.

MADONNA AND CHILD. Luca della Robbia. From the Campana collection. Gift of C. C. Perkins.

THE VIRGIN ADORING THE INFANT JESUS. Andrea della Robbia. From the Campana collection. Gift of C. C. Perkins.

CASE 21.

POTTERY OF THE MOUND-BUILDERS. An interesting collection of ancient American pottery, presented by Mrs. Gardner Brewer and Miss Brewer.

Nos. 1 to 18. Water Jars, flask-shaped, some of very graceful forms.

Nos. 25 to 47. Pots and Dishes, with and without handles. No. 31 is curious, the handle being in shape of a bird's head turned in towards the dish.

Nos. 35 and 36 give the outline of a fish; the head and tail are the handles; on one side the long dorsal fin, on the other four pectoral and ventral fins.

Nos. 48 to 56. Water Jars with human or animal heads.

They are of dark clay, often mixed with finely powdered shells. These were excavated at Diehlstaat, Missouri, by Dr. Geo. J. Engelmann, from a series of mounds on a peninsula which could have been cut off for defence, fortified by wall and ditch.

The date of the mound-builders has not been determined, and no resemblance can be traced in their skulls to those of modern tribes of Indians. Prof. F. W. Putnam, in the eighth annual report of the Peabody Museum, Cambridge, p. 45, quotes Prof. G. C. Swallow in reference to some similar mounds as follows:—

"The six feet of stratified sands and clays formed around the mounds since they were deserted, the mastodon's tooth found in these strata, and other facts indicate great age. These six feet of thin strata were formed after the mounds and before the three feet of soil resting alike on the mounds and on these strata."

Also nine specimens of similar pottery dug up near Cairo, Illinois. Gift of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Wales.

CASE 22.

POTTERY OF THE ZUÑIS.

CASE 23.

CHIRIQUI POTTERY. Fifty pieces. Gift of J. B. Stearns.

The collection thus far embraces over four thousand five hundred specimens, nearly six hundred kinds of wares, over a thousand different marks, and nearly two hundred and fifty different objects made in pottery.

It is arranged by provinces, of which there are fifty-six represented.

Most of the original specimens figured in the famous work of Ninagawa belong to the collection, and these will be indicated by special labels.

At the earliest moment the specimens will be properly labelled, and an extensive catalogue, with marks, will be published. Edward S. Morse.
